Severe Conditions for 110 ish Ministry.

LONDON, Jan 12.—The Standard's special from Constantinople says that the Russians have occupied Eski Saghraand Yeni Saghra, cutting off the Turk-ish army. This report is apparently due to the panic in Constantinople. Several special despatches announce that the garrison of Nisch, which surrendered to the Serviana, numbered 8000, eith 90 cannon, 12000 rifles and a num-

The Russians have probably not yet made any proposal but all reports current pe severe conditions. A rumor is in circulation in Berlin that the Russians demand evacuation of the Danube fortresses and a withdrawal of the Turks to a line of demarcation between Adrianople and Philippolis. The Times Bucharest despatch says: It is rumored that the Grand Duke Nicholas has demanded the surrender of Adrianople as the first condition. There is no great confidence in the conclusion of an armistice feet at Bucharest, unless the sian diplomatists to the virtual exclusion of the military element. Telegram to the Times from Vienna also says that according to very trust worthyimformation, the whole Russian army feels the hard ness, almost injustice of the armistice proposals coming just when the final triumph is in view. My informant, who knows the feeling at the headquarters, says there is a strong disposi-tion to prevent, or at any rate, delay an armistice as long as possible. The same correspondent says: The Prince of Montenegro having applied to the Russian headquarters for instruc-tions relative to an armistice, has been informed that he need not send an envoy as the Grand Duke would take charge of his interests. The Daily Telegraph's Pera correspondent sends the following:

The Porte has refused to allow the questions of peace and armistice to be considered together, as it was understood these questions were to be kept separate during the preliminary nego-tiations. I believe the Porte has de-termined that the defence of Adrianople is virtually impossible. Ministerial changes are regarded as favorable to peace, but opposed to the separate arrangement desired by Russia. The Mississippi River Monster.

(Natchez, Miss. Democrat.) A few weeks ago we published the particulars of a sea monster. as related by a tow boat captain. The captain of the tow boat described the monster as the tow boat described the monster as resembling an immense snake, with a bull-dog head and a pelican bill about ten feet long. It lashed the water into foam with its tail, and spouted oblique streams of water forty feet high. The monster attacked the barges which the succee tow-boat had in tow. After it disappeared the captain examined the barge, and found a splinter from its bill imand found a splinter from the said re-bedded in the timber, which he said re-sembled ivory.

At the time of publishing the above we felt a little inclined to doubt the monster story, but now, after having ourselves interviewed two gentlemen who have seen it, we really think there is a big sea monster in the Mississippi

The gentlemen whom we interviewed say that on the night of the 9th instant, while floating down the Mississippi river on Capt. Ed. Baker's produce boat, when near Island No. 95, they were startled by a very loud spinsh in the water, and as they had heard of the great monster, they were very much rightened. They saw a dark object not more than eighty yards from the boat, and for the first time saw the huge monster. It was swimming at a prerty fast rate toward the boat, and it made as much noise as the steamer R. E. Lee. It came on, and as it neared the boat it a few feet he sunk a c.owbar about suddenly turned to the right, striking the stern oar and knocking it everboard. John Caughlin and Dud Kelley alone John Caughlin and Dud Kelley alone remained on the roof, the balance of the crew taking refuge in the cabin. The menster came near enough to enable these two gentlemen to get a full view of him. They judged him to be about sixty-five feet in length. The Strong-Minded Women and their Rights--A Raid on Sena-tor Conkling.

(Special Dispatch to the Baltimore Sun.) WASHINGTON, Jan. 10 .- An amusing and interesting scene was witnessed ments for the benefit of their creditors. this afternoon in the corridor between the Senate chamber and the marble & Co., merchants and steamship owners room. Senator Conkling came out to at this place, have failed. Liabilities see a gentleman who had sent in his card to him. Before the gentleman could step up Mr. Conkling was bodily surrounded by some twenty or thirty of the strong-minded women who had, despite the efforts of the doorkeepers to prevent them, pushed past into the corridor. At the head of them was Mrs. Isabella Beecher Hooker. They but-ton-holed the Senator in the most forci-ble style, and when he found that he ble style, and when he found that he could neither advance nor retrace his steps without coming in violent collision with some of his tormentors, he was fain to stand still and listen. They appealed to him by all the gallantry and chivalry for which he was so famous to allow them to appear at the bar of the allow them to appear at the bar of the Senate and plead their cause. They told him that Vice-President Wheeler had said that it would be very ungallant and discourteous for any Senator urged that as the rule of the company.

a precedent under which the Senate could not refuse to allow any one with a petition to appear at the bar and argue on the subject. Mrs. Hooker said, "We represent eight millions of citizens of the United States who are basely defrauded of their rights. You are a man who have your rights, and we ask and demand of you that you help us to get ours." Mr. Conkling said he was al-ways glad to help the ladies in everything. Then some twenty of them in chorus said, "Give us our rights."

After this they became more demonstrative than ever, and came so close to the Senator that the position was rather embarrassing to a modest man. Finally a lady took him by the lapels of his coat and said: "Mr. Senator, you alone can do this thing for us. With your position, your eloquence and your abilcan secure for us the ballot. Do it, and call down upon your head the everlasting gratitude of the mothers and daughters of this country. It is a noble work; devote yourself to it, and let it be the crowning act of your life."

Mr. Conkling said: "You flatter me.

I have no such jufluence. I am satisfied I could not persuade the smallest woman here to do anything against her

"Oh yes, Mr. Senator," the lady said, putting her face within about two inches of his, "if we can only get you enlisted in our cause, we know we shall succeed, and that very soon."

Mr. Conkling said, "You can't prove by me."

At this juncture some jealousy was exhibited against the lady who had hold of the Senator's coat, and another one well carpeted, fuel in abundance free of of the strong minded caught hold of Mr. Conkling by the arm and pulled him away. This one tried the whispering game, and for three or four minutes there was a most striking pantomime. The lips of the lady, which were at Mr. Conkling's ear, were moving at the rate of sixteen knots an hour, the Senator at frequent intervals was bowing low, and making furtive attempts to edge his way to the door leading into the Senate chamber. He finally reached it, and with one very profound bow disappeared. The whole scene was highly relished by the few who witnessed it.

No. 748. Mobile Life Insurance Company vs. Brane. Error to the Circuit Court for the District of Louisiana. This action was brought by the insurance company to recover of Brane, who killed one McLemore, on whose life who killed one McLemore, on whose life the company had issued a policy of insurance, the amount of the policy. As exception of no cause of action was interposed, and sustained by the Court, not because of any defect in the petition, but on the broad ground that the light of the policy and the question presented is a new one in this Court. The argument here is that by all the authorities a man is rethat by all the authorities a man is re-sponsible for any direct damage to another resulting from his unlawful act. In this case it stands admitted that the act was unlawful, and it is said that it would be difficult to conceive of a more direct consequence than the damige done to the plaintiff by the act. The damage is not only direct, but it is also a certain pecuniary loss, thoroughly appreciable in money, according to scientific life-tables. The plaintiff does not sue, it is argued, for the damage done to the insured by the violation of his personal right in life, but because the slaver did an unlawful act, the direct consequence of which was to inflict loss upon the company. The act being un-lawful, the motive of the wrong-doer is not involved.

We were pleased to receive a call from our old friend, Rev. R. H. Griffith, of Charlotte, the agent in this State of the above institution.

The Baptists, with a membership of eleven hundred thousand whites, embracing persons from every grade of society and of every degree of culture, constitute a most important element in the moral and religious character of the South. Their rapid growth is a matter of surprise when it is remembered that they have steadily increased in numbers without any such organic union or ecclesiastical government, as in known to most Christian denominations. Considering the fact that each Church is an independent body, claiming and exercising supreme and final juris diction in matters pertaining to its own nembership and articles of faith, it is wonderful that they are uniform in doc trine and practice. In all their efforts for extension, education or missions they depend absolutely upon the voluntary contributions of their individual members. It betokens a remarkable degree of unity of sentiment, when they can secure the co-operation and contributions of such a membership scattered over so vast an empire as the Southern States, in an effort to endow a single theological seminary for the entire

The Railroad Bridges.

The bridge over the Staunton river, which was only a temporary structure, soon to be replaced by one more substantial, has again been swept away. Fears were entertained by our citizens that the bridge over the Roanoke would share a similar fate, but on visit-ing the R. & G. R. R. office we were sured by the officers of that company that no danger was apprehended, as the bridge was carefully watched, and the drift-wood and rubbish which, if suffered to collect against he supports, form the principal sources of danger, are kept off or else their accumulation in any quantity prevented. We are glad to know that the bridge will stand. Repairs on the R. & P. bridge, over the Staunton river, will begin at once, and the officers of that road will show their usual enterprise in having the break

Raleigh.

Below will be found some extracts from a letter published in the Balti-more Sun, in relation to our city, which may prove interesting:
Raleigh is a thriving city of some fifteen thousand inhabitants, and rapidly improving. Its principal traffic is in cotton. The new postoffice and United cotton. The new postoffice and United States court-room building is nearly completed and ready for eccupation. This is a large, handsome three-story granite building, and one of the most substantial edifices of the place. There will be no session of the North Carolina Legislature this winter, as that body only convenes biennially. From what we can clean from different sections of we can glean from different sections of this State we are inclined to think that the next Legislature will adopt the cel-ebrated Moffet register or bell-punch of

ALLMAND A. McKoy,

Secretary. Our Fire Statement.

The tabular statement of the fires in The tabular statement of the fires in our city for the past three years, which appears to-day in our columns, is not only instructive but useful. The increase in the number of fires, particularly those which are directly stated to be of incendiary origin, is undoubtedly a cause for the greatest possible watchfulness. Taking into consideration the number of such fires and the fact of there having been but one arrest, it would seem that the authorities have not given the matter the attention they not given the matter the attention they might have.

In some of the Northern cities the detectives have discovered that many buildings were fired by what are termed 'fire bugs,' or systematic incendiaries, who either from a monomaniac p ssion for destroying property or else frem deliberate malice against their fellow citizens, indulge in arson by the wholesale. Whether there has been such conduct by any individual or individuals in our city we know not but it care. in our city we know not, but it seems singular that so many unoccupied houses have been fired and also that the houses of one man should have been absolutely destroyed. The opinion is a prevalent one that tramps effect an entrance into the unoccupied buildings and in their usual free and buildings and in their usual free and buildings and in their usual free and buildings after and warming over the cold victuals they may have procured. Leaving early in the morning, they pay no attention to the condition of the fire, which may ignite shavings, &c., or be blown by the wind, and so spread and consume the building. Whether this supposition is the true ene we cannot say.

During the past year three houses owned by Mr. Joel Whitaker were curned, and their destruction said to be the work of incendiaries. It is not very comfortable to fancy that each of us who owns a home may thus have i met at 10 o'clock. Present:

When the telegraph announced the discovery by Prot. Hall that our neighboring planet hal two sate filts and the dispaten was each the next merning at ten thousand American breakrast tables, what think you was the effect upon the hearers? Some colloquy similar to the following was sure to occur: "Mars has two moons, hey? Pass me the mick, Kity. Strange, isn't it, that istronomers never saw them before Another chop, please. I wonder what they'll disc ver next? These corn cakes are excellent. What's the facest from korroper? We have become so a customed to startling discoveries and announcements, that we take them as a matter of course. Even truth must appear in flaming course to make herself seen. The virtues of Dr. Pierce's tolden Medical', iscovery and Fleasan Purgative Peliets have been tested in ten thousand households, whose inmates will tell you that they consider the discovery and introduction of these semedies of ar greater importance to the world than the moons of Mars.
